ENGINEER KILLED IN DERAILMENT OF TRAIN

KEARNEYSVILLE, Md., Nov. 1.—A Cumberland-Washington passenger train of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad left the rails here this morning, killing the engineer, Stanley Pickett of Baltimore, and severely injuring the fireman, Charles Pumphrey, also of Baltimore.

A number of passengers were shaken up and bruised.

After leaving the rails the engine turned over and the boiler exploded. Seven cars were dragged off the track by the locomotive, but did not overturn.

The accident occurred at a grade crossing near here. Officials were unable to assign a cause for the accident at first but started an immediate investigation.

Traffic on the Pittsburgh-Washington lines of the B. and O. was tied up, and a number of trains were re-routed.

CLOSING CAMPAIGN FEATURES EFFORTS OF DEMOCRATS HERE

Activity Enlivens Election; Special Issues On Ballot

The election campaign is nearing a close and from now on until the polls close Tuesday, November 4, leaders of the two dominant parties will redouble their efforts to land their favorites under the wire a winner.

For the first time in years Democratic party leaders here, believing this to be a "Democratic year" in Ohio politics, have entered a full slate of candidates for various county offices and an unusually spirited campaign is being conducted by the candidates themselves and by the party organization on their behalf.

Never in local history has a Democratic candidate been elected to a county office and nomination on the Republican ticket has always been tantamount to election.

This year straw votes have indicated the possibility of a heavy vote for Democratic state candidates and party leaders hope local candidates will ride along on the crest of what they predict will be a Democratic victory at the polls Tuesday.

Republican leaders are just as certain that in the event a heavy vote is recorded Tuesday, Greene County, essentially Republican by an overwhelming majority, will continue to remain so.

Xenia voters will be handed four ballots when they visit the polls Tuesday. One ballot bears the entire local and state Republican and Democratic tickets. Another is a judicial ticket of four candidates for state supreme court judge with two to elect, a third is the proposed constitutional amendment providing that not less than 50 per cent of the income and inheritance taxes that may be collected by the state shall be returned to the county, school district, city, village or township in which the tax originates, and the fourth ballot is relative to the Xenia city school levy.

A particularly active campaign is being waged in behalf of the proposed continuance of the present three-mill Xenia school levy for another five years. Its support—

FOUR INJURED IN TRAIN CRASH

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Four trainmen were seriously injured today when two freight trains crashed head-on in the south side yards of the Wabash road right of way.

Believing the accident resulted because one of the trains was switched onto the wrong track, police were to question a switch tender. The locomotives were drawing nearly 100 freight cars when the trains crashed.

The injured include S. S. Greek, 51, Montpelier, O., engineer of the Wabash train; C. F. Doll, Harvey, Ill., engineer of the Illinois Central freight; C. W. Schuhling, Homewood, Ill., brakeman; and James J. Davis, Montpelier, O.

The Illinois Central train was steaming into the city northbound and the Wabash train was going south when they collided.

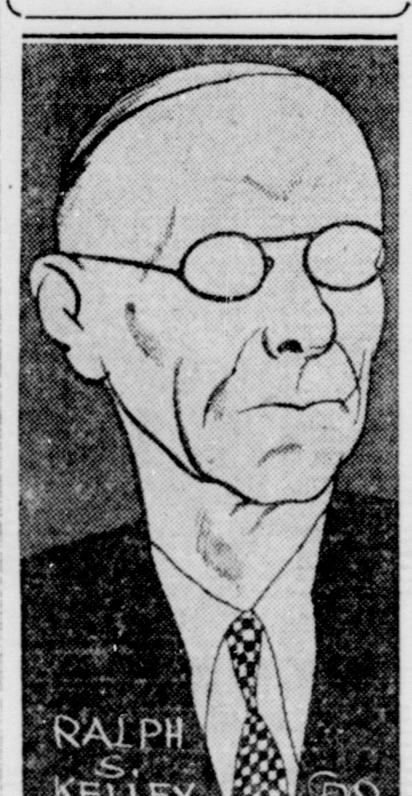

ARREST HUNDREDS OF COMMUNISTS

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 1.—Hundreds of persons, most of them said to be Communist agitators, were under arrest throughout Bulgaria today as the result of a reported attack on the lives of King Boris and Queen Giovanna on their railway journey from Bourgas on the Black Sea to Sofia.

The attack occurred near the Manole station, near Philippopolis, about 100 miles from the Bulgarian capitol. Although the Bulgarian government issued a perfunctory denial of the accident, it was learned on reliable authority that at least two shots were fired at the royal train. One bullet was reported to have injured a soldier guarding the royal coach.

Bulgarian officials admitted that many arrests had taken place as a result of information that a group of Communists had planned an attempt on the lives of the king and queen.

SECOND LARGEST VOTE FOR GOVERNOR IS BEING PREDICTED

Statistician Forecasts 2,091,000 Votes To Be Cast

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—Optimism, born of the conviction that victory is just ahead, radiated from Democratic and Republican state headquarters here today as one of the most intensive campaigns in the history of Ohio enters its closing hours.

"The consensus of opinion among well-informed Republicans in the capital and elsewhere in the state seems to be that Ohio will go Democratic next Tuesday," reads a statement issued from Democratic state headquarters. "Since the Democrats offer no dissent from this view, the conclusion may be accepted as being as nearly unanimous as any pre-election judgment can be."

"We are assured of the stability of the Republican vote. Governor Cooper, Senator McCulloch and the entire Republican ticket will be elected by substantial majorities," declared Earl R. Lewis, Republican state campaign manager. "The people of Ohio recognize that their outstanding records deserve this expression of confidence. The amount of their majorities will depend entirely on the size of the vote cast."

The prediction that a Democratic landslide is inevitable and that the Democratic nominees will be swept into office by a majority vote of more than 150,000 was voiced by Henry G. Brunner, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee.

The second largest vote ever cast for a gubernatorial nominee in the Buckeye State will be polled next Tuesday if the estimate made by George Neffner, statistician and election expert in the offices of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown is correct.

Neffner thinks that approximately 2,091,000 ballots will be cast for governor. The largest vote in a gubernatorial contest in Ohio was polled two years ago when 2,473,952 ballots were marked in the Cooper-Davey race.

It is Neffner's opinion, also, that at least 74,000 voters will participate in the McCulloch-Bulkeley race for the United States Senatehip for one reason, or another, will not cast a vote for either of the gubernatorial nominees. This will place the total vote next Tuesday at about 2,165,000.

Thousands of pastors of churches throughout Ohio have arranged to deliver sermons Sunday on "prohibition—a moral issue." Announcements indicated today that no less than ninety-eight Columbus clergymen will discuss this topic in their pulpits.

Despite the fact that many of the preachers will make no specific reference to either of the senatorial candidates, their sermons affect, at least indirectly, the contest between United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, Republican, and Robert J. Bulkley, the Democratic nominee, for the senatorial toga.

The unanimity of action on the part of Ohio clergymen is in response to recommendations made some weeks ago by the national council of churches and the Ohio council of churches.

Political leaders, especially Democrats, interpreted these recommendations as a concerted movement against wet candidates. As a result, protests were registered by various campaign committees and other organizations against what they declared was "a most improper entrance of politics into the pulpit."

Buckeye State voters next Tuesday will cast ballots for nominees virtually all his troops, numbering between 30,000 and 50,000 men, into the capital, although Rio De Janeiro was reported still to be suffering from a food shortage.

The electors, also will pass upon the proposal that the Ohio constitution be amended so as to permit counties and school districts to share in the distribution of the state income and inheritance taxes.

The state constitutional provision affecting the distribution of these taxes, now reads: "Not less than 50 per cent of the income and inheritance taxes that may be collected by the state shall be returned to the city, village or township in which said income, or inheritance, tax originates."

The proposed amendment would insert the words "county, school district," just ahead of "city, village," etc. and would change the period, at the end of the present amendment, to a comma and add: "or to any of the same as may be provided by law."

ONE DEAD, TWO HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—One man was killed and two others were injured in Dover village here today when they were struck by an automobile while attempting to push their own machine, which had stalled, off the road.

Theodore J. Rising, 24, of Cleveland, was the victim. He died instantly.

The injured were Ernest Mayrow, 28, and Dale Strick, 26. Both were taken to Lakewood Hospital. Mayrow sustained a fractured leg and Strick suffered minor injuries.

R. J. Fitzgerald, 56, of Cleveland, driver of the car which struck the stalled car, was held by Dover village police, pending an investigation.

NAME PROHIBITION CHIEF TO DIRECT WAR ON CHICAGO GANGDOM

NICK HAS BATTLE

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 1.—An alliance between crime and politics, under the onus of paying tribute to a gigantic liquor syndicate and to labor racketeers, and burdened with a blood stained past, Chicago is hopefully awaiting results from a new field marshal in its war against the underworld.

The new commander-in-chief is Alexander Jamie, a law enforcement veteran, who today began a furlough from his post of division chief of special prohibition agents and became chief investigator for the "secret six," the crusading committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Still vested with federal authority and granted state and city police powers, Jamie will attempt to co-ordinate the drive against gangdom.

Henceforth this campaign will be an instance of "big business working behind the scenes," he admitted in an interview granted to International News Service.

"You won't hear about us until the results are turned up in the courts," he said. "If there are any individual interests obstructing the progress of justice we will seek to ferret them out and remove the to ferret them out and remove them."

"In the past the law enforcement agencies have been hindered by too much publicity. Gangsters were given advance notice that the police were looking for them. From now on there will be a lid on this sort of thing, as far as possible."

"How about Al Capone?" Jamie was asked. "Some authorities must know his whereabouts. Why isn't he under arrest?"

"You wouldn't ask that if you knew Capone's system," the secret six chief replied, "but that's all I can say about it."

Jamie indicated his committee would work with the police of other cities in warring on crime.

Either of these factors—"hard times" and prohibition—is enough to confuse the estimates of the politicians. Together they form the most puzzling combination.

The Republicans are prepared for a high protest vote against existing business and economic conditions.

And the leaders admit privately, if not publicly, that if this protest vote attains great proportions it may well sweep them out of control of the seventy-second congress.

It is axiomatic in American politics that when a party is turned out of control of congress in mid-term the result forecasts loss of the presidential election two years later.

The campaign ends as it began—with two factors predominating:

(1) the business depression and consequent unemployment; and

(2) prohibition. The former factor is present in almost every state and every community, while prohibition has split both parties in some states, led life-long Republicans and Democrats to bolt their organizations, and generally created havoc with candidates.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans claim they will win control of the house and very nearly get the senate. The Republicans deny it in both instances, although they concede and are prepared for substantial losses.

REPORT NEW REBEL REGIME THREATENED BY DISSENSION

Conqueror Acclaimed On Arrival At Brazil Capital

BUEÑOS AIRES, Nov. 1.—While vigorously censoring dispatches from Rio de Janeiro today told of the adulation being showered upon Dr. Getúlio Vargas, provisional president of Brazil, following his arrival in the capital from the South, reports were current here that serious dissension within the ranks of the revolutionary leaders may endanger the peaceful progress of the new regime.

It was pointed out in well-informed circles here that there are wide differences of opinion among certain of the revolutionary leaders as to how the new government shall be constituted and that the military are likely to demand a stronger representation than Dr. Vargas was reported planning to give them.

In an interview with newspapermen prior to the arrival of Dr. Vargas, General Juarez Tavora, youthful leader of the northern insurgents, declared that present plans call for formation of a civil dictatorship back by the army and the Democratic nominee, for the senatorial toga.

This unanimity of action on the part of Ohio clergymen is in response to recommendations made some weeks ago by the national council of churches and the Ohio council of churches.

Political leaders, especially Democrats, interpreted these recommendations as a concerted movement against wet candidates. As a result, protests were registered by various campaign committees and other organizations against what they declared was "a most improper entrance of politics into the pulpit."

MAN, WIFE SLAIN BY TAXI DRIVER

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—After burning unabated, two major forest and brush fires were making further inroads today along the Los Angeles-Ventura County line.

Thousands of acres of land have already been devastated by the flames and property damage is well in excess of a million dollars.

Many mountain homes have been destroyed and a number of ranches swept by the blazes.

When it appears as if the fire in the Malibu area might be checked yesterday, the wind suddenly changed and carried the flames into additional timbered land.

The change in the wind did, however, aid the fire fighters somewhat in the Santa Susana district, where the burnt over territory became natural life breaks to the flames.

The situation in the Santa Susana district was still exceedingly dangerous, according to forestry officials, who reported that it will be necessary to allow the fire to burn itself out in this district.

OKLAHOMA CITY IS ENDANGERED BY FIRE HAZARD

Oil Mist Sprayed On State Capitol As Citizens Flee

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 1.—An outlaw oil well out of control and hurling sixty thousand barrels of oil into the air daily at the city's edge continued to hold the state capital in danger of fire today.

Hardly a mile from the city's business district No. 1, C. E. Stout oil well kept tossing out fountains of gas and crude oil while militiamen and city police and firemen maintained a close guard to prevent the oil-soaked buildings from catching fire.

The residential district nearest the well was occupied mostly by Negroes. They were ordered to vacate their homes by the nine units of Oklahoma National Guardsmen. Six schools closed their doors yesterday.

Locomotives and automobiles have been barred from the vicinity of the spouting well for fear that their fire boxes or ignition systems might touch off the fluid.

The well broke loose Thursday night when connections parted, presumably cut through by sand.

Thirty men, wearing steel helmets, their ears stuffed with cotton and their bodies encased in oilskins, worked in three shifts to day cleaning up debris on the derrick floor.

The master gates of the well were torn to shreds by the terrific gas pressure and several flow lines were cut to pieces by the sand.

Slow headway was made against the gusher, as workmen worked carefully against striking steel together which might produce a spark and start a conflagration, it was thought an attempt might be made to stop a nippel connection in place, this means was used to harness the Matay Sudic.

A steel cable hanging in the well is twisted and knotted and as it sways against the steel derricks it increases the danger of sparks.

The well, with its estimated flow of 60,000 barrels daily, has kept ahead of teams attempting to throw up dykes around the well and has trickled its way to the Canadian River.

The south end of town remained fireless today and men went to work without breakfast and their families reverted to cold fare.

The homes in this section were without heat and many were moving from the vicinity. Every means of transportation except motor boating utilized to transport household goods.

It was announced that six schools in the district would remain closed until further notice.

Transportation was at a standstill in the city. Not a train moved in the north end of the field yesterday and the order continued today. All switching in the oil fields has been suspended.

Incoming trains are unloading passengers on the east edge of the city and outgoing trains are standing in the yards.

The fire hazard last night and today was greatly increased by a fog which kept the oil fumes and gas hovering close to the earth.

The state fire marshal has established the danger zone well into the residential and warehouse district of the city. Winds whipped the gas over the city and the state capital, two miles of the runway well, was given a coating of oil.

CURBING SPECULATION

President Hoover, in addressing the American Bankers Association, referred to the excessive use of credit to finance speculation in times of unusual prosperity. He spoke of the power of bankers to encourage wise policies and restrain people from those that are hazardous. Excessive use of credit for speculation, he said, creates rates of interest that strangle ordinary business.

Excessive speculation in 1929 was the main reason for the stock market crash, which had such a depressing effect on business. What can be done to discourage the speculators from such follies another time?

People do not seem to learn in such matters from the losses of the past. The burnt child is said to dread the fire, but speculators will keep losing money over and over again in the same kind of game.

Theoretically it ought to be possible to prevent any such use of the country's credit for speculation as occurred in 1929. So much of the country's credit was tied up in stock market chances, that business concerns found it difficult to obtain loans they needed at reasonable rates.

Yet the bankers would say that they can't always tell when money is borrowed, what it is going to be used for. They would say that if they refused to loan money because they thought a borrower wanted it for speculation, that the borrower would go to some business house and borrow it of them, and this business concern would usually get the money at the banks where it did business regularly. But it would do good if bankers and all conservative business men, the next time speculation becomes excessive, would use their utmost influence to dissuade their friends and associates from pursuing the speculative fancy any further. The general sentiment of the business community could curb speculation, where the same result could not be secured by law.

PERSHING'S RETORT

General Pershing's retort to the pacifists who are clamoring for the United States to throw away its armaments is that it has "very little to throw away." We are defenseless today, according to the soldier who commanded in the World war the greatest number of men in the United States ever put into uniform, as we were in 1917.

"Grand!" ejaculate the pacifists. "War has been outlawed. We never shall have to defend ourselves again. Why prepare for something that will never eventuate?"

A student of history, as well as a soldier, General Pershing observes in rebuttal with all human experience to support his conclusion that war is not a thing of the past:

"What is there in history which authorizes us to conclude that someone else will not provoke one some of these days? It is not a question of whether or not we believe in war. It is a question of whether we shall defend this wonderful country of ours if some other nation which does believe in war, should attack us. . . . Who dreamed back in 1914 that this nation was on the verge of the greatest war in history?"

The possibility that Europe will blow up again and drag this country into another World war is recognized by others than "bloodthirsty" soldiers. Judge John Bassett Moore, as amiable and peace-loving a man as ever devoted his life to lessening the occasions of war, stated this possibility very clearly in a recent issue of The Review of Reviews. All the peace pacts, all the arguments based upon the assumed pacific influence of propinquity that have been arrayed against settling international disputes by armed force are likely to prove of little avail against the conflict of national interests, when nations have become convinced that their very existence is at stake.

ONE EVENING A WEEK

It would be a fine thing during the coming winter, if our people would generally consent to give one evening a week, or its equivalent during the daytime, to some kind of community work.

It would provide for the churches a large group of workers who could enable these institutions to do more educational and inspirational work. It would provide a group of people who were keeping close watch of municipal affairs, and assisting in all efforts for economy and efficiency. It would create another group assisting the schools to do more for the young people. Still another would be working for business development. A general willingness to take hold in such ways would be a constructive and reviving force of great power.

"A number of politicians on turning over their dry plank are surprised to find it wet on the other side." — Philadelphia Inquirer. But some of them probably aren't as much surprised as they pretend to be.

HE STUCK IT OUT

I like to think of Father Lasuen, who hated California! You will find his name in the history of the early fathers who established the missions of California. Junipero Serra came first. He was a driver, a builder, a strong, bold man, who loved adventure and difficulties, and whose eyes were often aglow with the joy of doing things. You find the name of Serra everywhere in California, and his name often is on the lips of native Californians.

But you rarely hear the name of Father Lasuen. He followed Serra, and took his place when the great pioneer died. . . . But Lasuen never loved California. He did not love the Indians. He did not love the work he was doing. He was not made for the task that Serra had left behind him. But he stuck it out.

He managed the missions, he kept them in repair, he worked with the Indians, he did everything a man might do to carry out the wishes of Junipero Serra. . . . He was faithful. . . . But his heart always was in Spain. He dreamed of a quiet garden, of tolling bells, of a library and manuscripts to be copied and embellished, of an established civilization. He wanted to be at peace, carrying on in the long of his fathers. California was harsh and dangerous in the years when Lasuen lived there. It was far from home, at the ends of the earth. Life was meager there, its people were rude and savage. And Lasuen was home-sick all the days of his California exile.

But he did his job. He hoped—how fiercely he hoped—that some day a younger man would arise, eager and zealous to take his place in California, who would even ENVY Lasuen his task. But no such young man arose in Lasuen's lifetime. Lasuen, whose heart was not in it, was the best man to do Serra's work. So Lasuen stayed without complaint and strengthened the missions and converted the Indians—and never went back to Spain. He never saw his quiet gardens again. He died in the west.

I like to think of him. Of Father Lasuen who was not "fitted" for his job, but who did it just the same, and who ought to be the patron saint of all men and women who dream of being free, but know they must stick it out.

WHO IS Madame Curie?

Marie Skłodowska Curie is a French physicist and chemist, the wife of Pierre Curie, also a physicist, whom she married in Paris in 1895. To the researches on radioactive substances and radioactivity which have made her name and that of her husband famous, she has contributed at least an equal share. It was Madame Curie who carried out the tedious and innumerable fractional crystallizations that finally yielded a minute sample of pure radium salt, enabling her to determine the precise atomic weight of radium. On her husband's death, in 1906, she succeeded him as professor of physics and director of the physical laboratory at the Sorbonne in Paris where she has continued her researches.

Danelaw

What is meant by the Danelaw as applied to the later Saxon period in English history?

Danelaw, or Danelaugh, was the name applied to that part of England which by the provisions of the Treaty of Wedmore or Chippenham in 878 was ceded to the Danes by Alfred the Great. The term "Danelaw" which is used in contradistinction to Mercian and West Saxon law until after the reign of Stephen (1135-54).

Siphon

How does a siphon operate?

A siphon is a tube in the form of an inverted U, used to convey a liquid from a higher to a lower level over an intermediate point higher than either. One arm of the tube is placed in the liquid while the other, which must extend below the level of the liquid, is outside and forms the outlet. If now the air is exhausted from the tube, the liquid will rise from the pressure of the atmosphere and will fill the tube and flow through the lower end, unless the bend of the tube is more than 33 feet above the surface of water or liquid of equal density, since a column of water 33 feet in height weighs as much as a column of atmosphere of equal cross section. The lower the outside tube below the surface of the liquid, the faster will be the flow. Inverted siphons are sometimes used in place of an aqueduct to carry water across a valley.

Bessemer

Who was Bessemer and what has he done for humanity?

Sir Henry Bessemer was an English inventor who lived from 1813 to 1898. He originated and successfully developed the process for making steel known by his name. He first took patents out on his steel-making ideas in 1855 after experimenting with cannon in the Crimean war and finding the type then in use would not resist the strain of improved projectiles. In addition to the Bessemer steel process he is credited with many other inventions.

From one baliwick come reports of perfect ferment of pre-election excitement and activity; from another, maybe only 20 minutes' automobile ride away, come reports of no interest at all. Thinking nationally, we are surprised so much political difference in baliwicks so close together. However, we must remember that the interval separating them needs to be multiplied by 45, in order to get the right focus-making a hiatus comparable to the jump from Broadway's speak-easies to western Kansas.

This makes it look more natural.

If Massachusetts be accepted as a criterion, the wind-up of the current fall's New England campaign unquestionably is a corker. That is, the Massachusetts contest is hot enough to raise the average for the entire group of states.

Rhode Island's temperature also is high.

Contrariwise, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Vermont hardly show signs of any fever whatever. Maine's early election of course has disposed of her already.

As for Massachusetts—

If the Democrats cannot beat

William M. Butler, a dirty in so obvious a state; handicapped by hard times and unemployment; opposed by union labor; denounced by the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge's daughter for treating her aged father so she says, "like a dog" at the 1924 G.O.P. convention; outvoted, between them, by his two primary opponents; accused of huge expenditures in that same primary; bolted, among others, as an "impossible candidate to support."

NEW ENGLAND POLITICS GIVE MINIATURE VIEW U. S. BATTLEFRONT

—CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—New England is a kind of political Tom Thumb golf course.

It duplicates the big national links in miniature.

Quite as the whole country varies on a large scale, that little patch of six states varies in its own small way.

It has its diversity of interests, its wet areas and its dry areas, its congested districts and its great open spaces (away up north), its jealousies between city folk and country folk—all reproduced in a territory about a forty-fifth the size of our entire republic of such magnificent distances.

They sound pretty personal, some of them.

The duel between Republican Gov. Frank G. Allen to hang on his job and Democratic Candidate Joseph B. Ely to take it away from him is not so ugly—but it is no mere scrap with blunted rapiers.

To give both sides their dues:

The Democrats are not as sure of Ely as they are of Coolidge, nor are Republicans so badly worried concerning Allen's fate as they are concerning Butler's.

That it is a mean campaign may be judged from the nature of the slurs, mentioned above, directed against ex-Senator Butler.

CURBING SPECULATION

President Hoover, in addressing the American Bankers Association, referred to the excessive use of credit to finance speculation in times of unusual prosperity. He spoke of the power of bankers to encourage wise policies and restrain people from those that are hazardous. Excessive use of credit for speculation, he said, creates rates of interest that strangle ordinary business.

Excessive speculation in 1929 was the main reason for the stock market crash, which had such a depressing effect on business. What can be done to discourage the speculators from such follies another time?

People do not seem to learn in such matters from the losses of the past. The burnt child is said to dread the fire, but speculators will keep losing money over and over again in the same kind of game.

Theoretically it ought to be possible to prevent any such use of the country's credit for speculation as occurred in 1929. So much of the country's credit was tied up in stock market chances, that business concerns found it difficult to obtain loans they needed at reasonable rates.

Yet the bankers would say that they can't always tell when money is borrowed, what it is going to be used for. They would say that if refused to loan money because they thought a borrower wanted it for speculation, that the borrower would go to some business house and borrow it of them, and this business concern would usually get the money at the banks where it did business regularly. But it would do good if bankers and all conservative business men, the next time speculation becomes excessive, would use their utmost influence to dissuade their friends and associates from pursuing the speculative fancy any further. The general sentiment of the business community could curb speculation, where the same result could not be secured by law.

PERSHING'S RETORT

General Pershing's retort to the pacifists who are clamoring for the United States to throw away its armaments is that it has "very little to throw away." We are defenseless today, according to the soldier who commanded in the World war the greatest number of men the United States ever put into uniform, as we were in 1917.

"Grand!" ejaculate the pacifists. "War has been outlawed. We never shall have to defend ourselves again. Why prepare for something that will never eventuate?"

A student of history, as well as a soldier, General Pershing observes in rebuttal, with all human experience to support his conclusion that war is not a thing of the past:

"What is there in history which authorizes us to conclude that someone else will not provoke one some of these days? It is not a question of whether or not we believe in war. It is a question of whether we shall defend this wonderful country of ours if some other nation, which does believe in war, should attack us. . . . Who dreamed back in 1914 that this nation was on the verge of the greatest war in history?"

The possibility that Europe will blow up again and drag this country into another World war is recognized by others than "bloodthirsty" soldiers. Judge John Bassett Moore, as amiable and peace-loving a man as ever devoted his life to lessening the occasions of war, stated this possibility very clearly in a recent issue of The Review of Reviews. All the peace pacts, all the arguments based upon the assumed pacific influence of propinquity that have been arrayed against settling international disputes by armed force are likely to prove of little avail against the conflict of national interests, when nations have become convinced that their very existence is at stake.

ONE EVENING A WEEK

It would be a fine thing during the coming winter, if our people would generally consent to give one evening a week, or its equivalent during the daytime, to some kind of community work.

It would provide for the churches a large group of workers who could enable these institutions to do more educational and inspirational work. It would provide a group of people who were keeping close watch of municipal affairs, and assisting in all efforts for economy and efficiency. It would create another group assisting the schools to do more for the young people. Still another would be working for business development. A general willingness to take hold in such ways would be a constructive and reviving force of great power.

"A number of politicians on turning over their dry plank are surprised to find it wet on the other side." — Philadelphia Inquirer. But some of them probably aren't as much surprised as they pretend to be.

HE STUCK IT OUT

I like to think of Father Lasuen, who hated California!

You will find his name in the history of the early fathers who established the missions of California. Junipero Serra came first. He was a driver, a builder, a strong, bold man, who loved adventure and difficulties, and whose eyes were often aglow with the joy of doing things. You find the name of Serra everywhere in California, and his name often is on the lips of native Californians.

But you rarely hear the name of Father Lasuen. He followed Serra, and took his place when the great pioneer died. . . . But Lasuen never loved California. He did not love the Indians. He did not love the work he was doing. He was not made for the task that Serra had left behind him. But he stuck it out.

He managed the missions, he kept them in repair, he worked with the Indians, he did everything a man might do to carry out the wishes of Junipero Serra. . . . He was faithful. . . . But his heart always was in Spain. He dreamed of a quiet garden, of tolling bells, of a library and manuscripts to be copied and embellished, of an established civilization. He wanted to be at peace, carrying on in the land of his fathers. California was harsh and dangerous in the years when Lasuen lived there. It was far from home, at the ends of the earth. Life was meager there, its people were rude and savage. And Lasuen was home-sick all the days of his California exile.

But he did his job. He hoped—how fiercely he hoped—that some day a younger man would arise, eager and zealous to take his place in California, who would even ENVY Lasuen his task. BUCANEERS WILL
MEET FIFTEEN FOES
DURING COURT YEAR

Season Will Start December 12 With Waynesville

Columbus Central High School, which for several years past has been represented by cage teams sufficiently strong to reach the finals of the annual state basketball tournament at Columbus, has been added to Xenia Central-High's 1930-31 basketball schedule, it is announced.

Columbus Central courtiers will appear here January 3, the night after the Bucs meet Cincinnati Norwood on the Norwood floor.

Addition of the strongest school in Columbus to the court chart will give Xenia a total of fifteen regularly scheduled games, including nine at home and six away.

The opposite was true in the Greenville contest because the Bucs exhibited a superior brand of football in all departments and Greenville may consider itself fortunate to escape with a tie score.

The tie score was refreshing from a Xenia standpoint and may encourage the Bucs on to better things. Xenia grididers have been "on a diet" as far as victories have been concerned since the season's opener in 1929, and it is about time they get a wink from Lady Luck.

Xenia and Greenville football teams have a strange faculty for playing tie games. They struggled to a scoreless draw in 1927 and the 1928 score was 6 to 6 just as it was Thursday. As for the other four times the two schools have met in football, Xenia has won twice and so has Greenville.

The Buccaneer court season will open December 12 against Waynesville here.

TRANSYLVANIA - DAYTON TIE IS UPSET OF OHIO GAMES FRIDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 1.—Transylvania's feat of holding the University of Dayton Flyers to 6-to-6 stood out today as the outstanding feature of last night's football games in the Buckeye State.

Little Transylvania, who has traveled to our Ohio cities this fall and met three defeats at the hands of Buckeye elevens, took out its revenge on Dayton last night, although the Kentuckians were unable to win.

Dayton took and early lead in the second quarter when Fitzsimmons, Flyer halfback, heaved a 22-yard pass over the goal line to Heiman. Marshall's placement kick was blocked. Transylvania fought desperately for the rest of the game and succeeded in pushing the oval over in the fourth period. Dayton narrowly escaped defeat when Taylor, Transylvania back, kicked a little wide of his mark for the extra point.

Dayton threatened to score many times but Transylvania succeeded in holding the Flyers within the scoring zone.

The powerful Loyola University eleven from New Orleans got the breaks and turned them into enough touchdowns to score a 27-to-6 victory over Xavier. It was the second loss of the year for the Musketeers.

Loyola was unable to score on two chances during the first half, but the Southerners came back and pushed over four touchdowns in the last two frames. Xavier's lone marker was made in the fourth quarter.

Mount Union performed true to predictions and downed the Baldwin-Wallace eleven, 37 to 7, in the only Ohio Conference game of the evening.

Muskingum stepped one rung nearer to an Ohio conference championship by taking the count of Marietta, 45 to 6. It was stated earlier in the week that the Muskies were five touchdowns better than the Ohio River outfit. Muskingum scored in every period except the third when Coach Bill Lange gave his shock troops a workout. Bille, Muskingum quarterback, ran sixty-five yards for his team's last score of the game.

The fighting Irish of John Carroll had little difficulty in winning over the Wilmington College quakers, 30 to 0. Wilmington was completely outplayed during all of the game.

Several feature tilts were scheduled for Ohio gridirons this afternoon, among them being Cincinnati-Ohio University, Oberlin-Akron, Wooster-Case and Findlay-Defiance. The Wisconsin-Ohio State homecoming game draws the center of the spotlight.

CARNIVAL PROFIT AMOUNTS TO $300

A profit amounting to almost $300 was realized from the twenty-fifth annual Hallowe'en carnival of the Library Association in Yellow Springs Friday evening. The Opera House was the center of the evening's activities and other attractions were staged on Dayton St. in the village.

The festivities opened with a chicken dinner served in the Methodist Church. Two parades followed, one for children and another for adults and attractive prizes were presented in both events for the best, most original, funniest and other styles of costumes.

Two plays "Harlequin's Return" and "One, Two, Three" were presented in the Opera House under the direction of Miss Katherine Fitch. The Benning brothers quartet, of Yellow Springs, sang several selections. Dancing was enjoyed during the remainder of the evening in the Opera House on the first floor. Music was furnished by a calliope from Springfield. Mrs. Dean Birch was general chairman of the affair.

After Yale comes Allegheny and Cornell and then a two weeks' "rest," four days to be spent on a train, and then Stanford.

Idaho, Southern Branch, 103; Montana State Normal, 0.

Occidental, 12; Redlands, 7.

Outstanding on this Green team so far this season have been Bill Morton, quarterback, whose judgment in the Harvard game was virtually flawless. Bill McCall, Shep Wolff, Len Clark, Bob Lee, Sutton, Frigard, all backs; Yudick and Sullivan, ends; Broemberg, and Captain Andres, center.

Dartmouth started this season against three weak outfits, Norwich, Bates and Boston University, rolled up big scores, beating these opponents soundly. Then came second loss of the year for the Musketeers.

Loyola was unable to score on two chances during the first half, but the Southerners came back and pushed over four touchdowns in the last two frames. Xavier's lone marker was made in the fourth quarter.

Mount Union performed true to predictions and downed the Baldwin-Wallace eleven, 37 to 7, in the only Ohio Conference game of the evening.

Muskingum stepped one rung nearer to an Ohio conference championship by taking the count of Marietta, 45 to 6. It was stated earlier in the week that the Muskies were five touchdowns better than the Ohio River outfit. Muskingum scored in every period except the third when Coach Bill Lange gave his shock troops a workout. Bille, Muskingum quarterback, ran sixty-five yards for his team's last score of the game.

The fighting Irish of John Carroll had little difficulty in winning over the Wilmington College quakers, 30 to 0. Wilmington was completely outplayed during all of the game.

Several feature tilts were scheduled for Ohio gridirons this afternoon, among them being Cincinnati-Ohio University, Oberlin-Akron, Wooster-Case and Findlay-Defiance. The Wisconsin-Ohio State homecoming game draws the center of the spotlight.

Pola Negri won her first round in her re-opened suit for divorce from Prince Midvani in Paris Friday when the Prince did not attend the preliminary hearing at the palace of justice and the court ruled "no reconciliation by default."

Pola was delayed in reaching the "reconciliation" hearing, a formality, because of an auto accident enroute, but was unharmed. "I am very happy," she said after the hearing. "The prince's absence from today's hearing means I may get my divorce quickly, which will enable me to return to my first love—the screen."

of a new popularity wave following his success in "The Dawn Patrol," over which Howard Hughes, producer of "Hell's Angels," sued First National. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., also stands on a new pedestal as the result of his work in this picture.

Barthelmess will return to Hollywood about November 24 by which time his wife, Jessica, will be entirely recovered from a recent appendicitis operation.

Hollywood's newest star, "Mickey Mouse," will be preserved for posterity in Madame Tussaud's wax figure museum in London. Walter Disney, creator of the famous rodent, has cabled permission to the museum to make figures of both Mickey and his sweetheart Minnie. British exhibitors feature them on a par with the screen's best known stars.

LEGION COMMITTEE URGES VOTERS TO VOTE NEXT TUESDAY

"No resident of Greene County, no matter how well he is blessed with worldly goods, nor how poorly he is situated, is worthy of the name 'citizen' unless he goes to the polls on next Tuesday and registers his choice of officers for the county and state."

This was the manner in which today the Americanization committee of Joseph P. Foody Post No. 95 of the American Legion urged all residents of Greene County, men and women, to turn out and vote next Tuesday. The call to residents to participate in the election is the first act of the new Americanization committee at the request of state and national headquarters of the Legion, which annually makes this a part of the committee's work.

"Patriotism today can be expressed in only one way," Dr. Harold C. Messenger, chairman of the committee said, "and that is by the people of Greene County taking an active part in the affairs of county, state and national government. It is as much of a duty to vote in times of peace as it is to fight in time of war. Greene County residents always have responded to this call to vote better than other counties of similar population in the state and it is requested that this year shall be no exception. The vote record of next Tuesday should show all qualified voters visiting the polls and expressing the inalienable privilege of stating their preference for those who will represent them," Dr. Messenger concluded.

BOARD MUST OBTAIN COMPLETE RESULTS

Until they have conveyed to their respective offices, either personally, by messenger or by phone, the result of the votes cast for all candidates, for and against the constitutional amendment and upon all local questions and issues, their work on election day Tuesday will not be over, Greene County election officials have been advised by a communication received from Secretary of State Clarence Brown.

A number of precinct officials, during the last primary election, closed their booths after counting the votes and went to bed without reporting the total to county boards of election until the next day. This caused an inexcusable delay in obtaining a complete unofficial count.

"THE SOCIAL LION"

They Couldn't Know

BACK IN 1818 the greatest newspaper of the day declared that the world had reached the limit of human expansion. It even went further, saying that there weren't enough supplies in the world to support further growth of population.

The mind of 1818 couldn't conceive of the miracles that human ingenuity would perform during the twentieth century. It couldn't imagine the wonders that would be wrought by new agricultural methods and modern manufacturing genius. It was ignorant of transportation as we know it, or the progressive sales methods of today. It could not see the vital part that would be played by advertising.

Even today there are some who fail to realize what an important factor advertising has become. Advertising is as much a part of today's life as electricity, antiseptic surgery or automobiles. It keeps us up to date on the many things we need in order to live profitable, happy and useful lives. It presents for our approval articles of all kinds and for all purposes. The requirements of each member of the family are met by advertised offers of good merchandise to provide value.

The advertisements save time, money and effort for those who read them and follow their guidance. They are practical guarantees of satisfaction.

LEGION COMMITTEE URGES VOTERS TO VOTE NEXT TUESDAY

"No resident of Greene County, no matter how well he is blessed with worldly goods, nor how poorly he is situated, is worthy of the name 'citizen' unless he goes to the polls on next Tuesday and registers his choice of officers for the county and state."

This was the manner in which today the Americanization committee of Joseph P. Foody Post No. 95 of the American Legion urged all residents of Greene County, men and women, to turn out and vote next Tuesday. The call to residents to participate in the election is the first act of the new Americanization committee at the request of state and national headquarters of the Legion, which annually makes this a part of the committee's work.

"Patriotism today can be expressed in only one way," Dr. Harold C. Messenger, chairman of the committee said, "and that is by the people of Greene County taking an active part in the affairs of county, state and national government. It is as much of a duty to vote in times of peace as it is to fight in time of war. Greene County residents always have responded to this call to vote better than other counties of similar population in the state and it is requested that this year shall be no exception. The vote record of next Tuesday should show all qualified voters visiting the polls and expressing the inalienable privilege of stating their preference for those who will represent them," Dr. Messenger concluded.

POULTRY PROBLEM WILL BE DISCUSSED

Problems of Greene County poultrymen will be discussed by R. E. Cray, extension poultry specialist of Ohio State University and Bruce Davidson, Wilmington, at the assembly room in the Court House, next Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Mr. Cray will discuss "Fall Management of the Flock" and Mr. Davidson will speak on "Feeding for Hatchability." A demonstration showing the procedure in blood testing poultry will be held. Poultry house appliances and an exhibit showing the different grades of eggs will be on display.
